

Hello I'm Marcus Messamer. I have a BS in mechanical engineering from Texas Christian University, as well as an AAS in software development from Indian Hills Community College. Up until about a year ago I was working as a mechanical engineer, but after getting some exposure to projects where I had the opportunity to work on software, I decided to start taking actions to make the switch to software engineering and web development. I am currently an embedded software engineer working on the enhancement end of things. So I'm pretty good at taking on drastically new tasks at the drop of a hat. I'm good at figuring out things on the fly and collecting data to make we researched decisions.

I'd love to here more about your company and see if my skills would be of benefit.
